Why SMP Matters

In the four counties in FBSJ's service area – Burlington, Camden, Gloucester, and Salem – there are approximately 50,000 food-insecure children. These children typically receive free or reduced lunches during the school year, but only 10% of them are enrolled in a camp program that offers nutritious meals daily when schools are in recess. FBSJ has made this "summer meal gap" a central focus by aggressively expanding its SMP. The 205,000 meals it will serve this year represents a 125% increase over its 2015 SMP total.
